ARCK- Online Workshop for further enhancing cooperation and development for RockInEurope project

World Rock and Roll Confederation (WRRC) is involved in the project as associated partner. WRRC has long been launching programmes all around the world to popularize the sport. Acrobatic Rock and Roll has a history of 4 decades. This form of dance combines endurance, flexibility and gymnastic elements while also including a unique enthusiasm factor in the learning process, which is one of the factors which makes it more and more popular all around the world, including in the European Union. It is necessary to collect and share materials to have more knowledge from more nations, especially since there are no officially accepted or state-accredited sports-specific training schools or programmes, books, publications on this respective topic.

Katalin Kis, vice-president of the World Rock'n'Roll Confederation (<https://wrrc.dance/>) will hold an online workshop on April 27th, to present the project and the tools for using the ARCK website. Members of dance associations and clubs were invited to the meeting, who will have the opportunity to participate in testing the methodology offered by Acrobatic Rock'n'Roll Center of Knowledge (ARCK). During the online workshop, the participants will be introduced to the different tools of ARCK, how to contribute to the common database and expert evaluations, so that a professionally comprehensive document system, knowledge repository can be made available to users. The Workshop is essential for gathering feedback from professionals. The platform will be available from May 31st.
